

Celery Acreage In Lake Region Bigger Than Ever

A few short years ago Sanford was the celery center of Florida. Farmers in the Lake Okeechobee Region hadn't once thought of bringing the luscious weed into production in this area. Today it's a different story. The Lake Region is the celery center of Florida.

Starting a few years ago a handful of growers ventured into celery growing, and so successful were the efforts that other farmers followed suit. Only a few hundred acres were planted during the first season but results were excellent and the area bounds. What the final number of acres will be before the plantings reach the saturation point is beyond prediction.

Last season in the Lake Region there were 15 growers of celery with a total acreage running something over 3,000 acres. This season according to a survey conducted this week plantings will go well over the 4,000 acre total. At least six more growers are going into the celery business this fall, making a total of 21, and a conservative estimate is that their

One grower in the Belle Glade area has 82 beds of plants out now and according to those who produce the weed this number of beds should produce enough plants to set 246 acres.

Last year celery producers had difficulty in securing enough crates to take care of their crops. However, this year the WPB has eased up on crates a bit and growers may buy all they can find. Some growers use 6 of the the big problem. Crate mills are unusually busy with war contracts and don't like the idea of producing colony crates when there is

When there is bigger money to be made out of government contracts.

With the Lake Region already recognized as the outstanding bean producing center during winter months, now comes celery for its share of the limelight. Following celery it is possible that ramic will become one of the outstanding crops of this area. After ramic, there is no telling what may be spotlighted in immediate coming years.

Lake Level Up A Little During Week

The water level in Lake Oke-

11 has started a gradual upswing through rains which have occurred during the past two or three weeks in the lake area. At the end of last week the level was record-

It is pointed out, however, by engineers that there is little hope of any substantial raise in the lake level until heavy rains begin to fall in the Kissimmee River and Flaheating Creek valleys since these are the principle inlets to the lake. Unusually dry weather through the central Florida area has done more to reduce the lake level than the dry weather in the lake section.

More than two inches of rain has been recorded here during the week, the heaviest fall being last

.63 inches was recorded, and .16 on Wednesday. The highest temperature was on Monday just before the rain when 96 degrees was recorded.

About three-quarters of an inch of rain will be needed during the next four days to bring the month's rainfall to normal. A deficiency of 96 inches was noted Tuesday with a total deficiency since January 1 of 10.154 inches.

Despite the fact that rainfall has been light in this area it has been much heavier on the west side of the state than on the east side.

Down in South Carolina it seems, the female of the species gains a knowledge of masculine ways and wiles at a tender age. ## JURYMAN'S LUCK

When the name of the plaintiff was called out in court, much to everyone's amazement, he stood up in the jury-box.
"What are you doing there?" snapped the clerk.
"I was called to serve on the jury," was the meek reply.

"But you must have known you couldn't sit on a jury and try your own case?"
"I suppose not, admitted the plaintiff ruefully. "I did think it was a bit of luck."

WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED

Determined to pass the physical examination for the air force, an underweight lad ate a pound of dried prunes and soaked them up nicely by drinking several quarts of water. Soaked by capacity, he stoically endured the doctor's probes and pokes. Then came the verdict.

"Fine, fine, my boy, except you are underweight just one pound. Now run along home and eat a box of apples and drink lots of water. Then come right back and we'll try again."—Capper's Weekly.

CIGARETTES SHED WRAPPERS

Civilians' cigarettes shed their protective covering for the summer season; it probably will return with the fall.

The disappearance of cellulose wrapping represents voluntary conservation on the part of the tobacco industry. Contrary to popular belief, summer's humidity acts to preserve cigarettes. It is in cold weather that tobacco dries out fast, especially when kept on the shelves of steam-heated stores. So cellulose wrappers are being hoarded now for use when they are more needed.

Officially, the government still allows the tobacco (and baking) industry 90 per cent of the cellulose used in 1942. At best, this isn't enough to wrap today's huge production. Actually, high-priority orders for munitions and army ration wrapping, etc., plus the increased war need for cellulose, (wood pulp) have cut cellulose shipments to civilian industry below quota. —Wall Street Journal.

SYNTHETIC RUBBER BUGS

Army tests of synthetic rubber indicate it's improving but still short of the natural product. A "test fleet" covered 5,225,000 miles over a 200-mile course. The route included 70 percent hard roads, 15 percent gravel roads, 15 percent cross country. Vehicles tested were bicycles, motorcycles, jeeps, staff cars, trucks and heavy equipment ranging from three-quarter ton weapon carriers to 10-ton, 13-wheel trucks. The army's conclusion: Synthetic still doesn't stand up under heat and friction as well as natural. Large heavy-duty tires still require 10 to 12 percent natural rubber while small and medium sizes can be made of almost all synthetic. Two types, for example, now are 99 percent synthetic rubber. —Wall Street Journal.

DRAFT REGULATION

There are many reasons why some draft boards are helping candidates. One of them was a Supreme Court order concerning the examination of the teeth.

"Repeat following telegram to local boards at once: 'The purpose of the physical examination is to determine whether the registrant is fit for military service. It is not the purpose of the examination to determine whether the registrant is fit for civilian life. If a registrant is found to be unfit for military service, he should be deferred for civilian life. If a registrant is found to be fit for military service, he should be drafted for military service.'"

Victory Garden

When to Plant Your Victory Garden

"Sow too early and you waste seed, sow too late and you waste time. Run a valuable bit of old time garden advice. But most Victory Gardeners are eager to get even more definite information about when to plant.

Consulting experienced home or market gardeners in the community is one of the best ways of learning the proper time for sowing seed of various vegetables. For a home gardener who wants to figure out his own planting dates, however, Harry Drewes, Superintendent of Ferry-Morse Seed Breeding Station near Detroit, Michigan, offers a method.

"The first thing to know," says Mr. Drewes, "is the average date of the last hard frost in the particular area in which you live. This knowledge can be secured from local weather bureaus. State Agricultural Experiment Stations, or from data compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture. Then using that date as a basis you can work out a pretty safe planting schedule."

In normal years, Mr. Drewes explains, seed of radish, lettuce, peas, spinach, beets, carrots, mustard and turnip can safely be sown two to three weeks before the average date of the last hard frost in spring. Planting time within those two or three weeks depends largely upon soil conditions. If a handful of soil from the garden feels slightly moist and crumbly, it is ready for seed sowing. If it packs like a mudpie, the Victory Gardener must wait a few days more.

Tender crops such as beans, corn, cucumber, okra, and squash must usually wait a week or two after the average hard frost date before seed is sown.

"It is always wise to wait a week or two before the average last frost date before setting out tender young plants which have been started indoors," Mr. Drewes advises. "Among them are eggplant, pepper, and tomato. Select a cloudy day for transplanting, or do the work in the early morning or evening so that the seedlings will have chance to recover somewhat before the sun shines on them. If they must be set out in sunshine, see that they are shaded from the heat for a while."

Right Varieties Bring Best Results

Certain kinds and varieties of vegetables are more satisfactory than others where Victory Garden space is limited. Ferry-Morse Seed Co. experts urge wise selection in order to produce quality crops of bumper size on a small home plot. White-bush beans rank among the kinds of vegetables that yield unusually well for the space they occupy, pole beans will produce several times as much in the same area. The Kentucky Wonder type of pole bean is especially practical. The long pods hang in thick clusters, and if some of them become too old for snaps, the beans inside are delicious for "green shells."

Beet is a double-duty vegetable. A row or two will furnish greens in the young stage and plenty of roots later on. A small planting of Swiss chard will supply a family with greens for a long season if the outer leaves are kept cut and the inner ones allowed to keep on growing.

It pays to choose cabbage varieties with care if you want to grow the largest possible number of heads in a home garden. Small, early-heading varieties such as Copenhagen Market and Early-Jersey Wakefield take up less space than were spreading types. The plants are so compact that twelve to fifteen heads can be grown in a twenty-foot row.

Spreading vines like melon, winter squash, and pumpkin usually take up too much room in a small garden. What they "suffer" in is real food value. Summer squash varieties of compact habit, however, are ideal, particularly the improved straight-neck strains. They take up comparatively little space for the quantities of tasty succulent fruits they produce.

Some varieties of tomato yield far better than others for the amount of room the vines take up.

Study Amendment For November Voting

WINTER GARDEN, Aug. 3. (FNS)—Terming the "anti-closed shop or right to work" amendment to be voted on in November one of the most vital questions ever to be considered by voters of this or any other state, R. D. Keene, president of Florida Voters for Constitutional Government, stated this week that his organization considered the passage of this amendment of almost importance and urged voters to give the matter their thoughtful consideration.

The amendment provides that "the right to work shall not be denied or abridged, because of membership or non-membership in any labor union or organization."

Keene points out that top men in the ranks of today's legislation and regulation, designed to protect both workers and the public and calls attention to an article on this subject published in the August issue of the "Readers Digest," entitled, "Why Must Be Regulated?" written by Oswald Garrison Villard, friend and spokesman for labor's cause, and a statement of an International A. P. of L. president, George Q. Brown, who spoke before the Harvard School of Business Administration, said, "Unless responsible unions accept reasonable legal union regulations in the public interest, then all unions will feel the wrath of public opinion."

Public opinion, he contends, has long opposed union methods that force payment of dues as a condition for the right to work and impose closed shops in an effort to monopolize certain occupations.

Sub-Normal Rainfall In Glades Section

WEST PALM BEACH, Aug. 3. (FNS)—Growers in both the Glades and Coastal areas of the Everglades drainage district are faced with a serious situation as a result of sub-normal rainfall the district warned in its June report.

Unless the rainfall deficiencies are offset during the next three months, agricultural operations will be seriously affected during the coming production season, the report says. Rainfall average for a maximum of 60 percent of the normal in the upper glades to approximately 30 percent of normal along the coast from Palm Beach to Miami. To make matters worse, evaporation exceeded that normally expected, according to the report.

Since the normal rainfall for July is between seven and eight inches for most of the Everglades, it is pointed out that normal rainfall during the month would hardly restore water tables to ground surface in some instances provided the total could be retained on the land.

The Commissioners promised that the district will make every effort to prevent any wastage of water by the canal system until water levels are restored.

A recent ruling of the OPA authorizes an allowance of one gallon of gas per day for soldiers home on furlough. Previous ruling allowed only five gallons per day. The length of furlough a serviceman might have.

The Florida Farm Bureau Federation has come out flatly in favor of the Anticlosed Shop amendment, or as some term it the "Right to Work Amendment," and urge Florida voters to work and vote to make this American principle a permanent feature of the State's Constitution. Florida Voters for Constitutional Government, however, pledges itself in favor of the amendment with the "right to work" listed in its Declaration of Principles.

Major-General Roy S. Geiger, formerly of Crescent City, Florida is commanding the expeditionary forces now engaged in driving the Japanese from the U. S. island of Guam, where American troops for the first time meet the enemy in an effort to recapture American soil.

Mrs. J. E. Grubbs and grandson, Mrs. Gene Wirawan, Jr. of West Palm Beach are visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Grubbs, at Palm Beach this week. Mrs. Gene Wirawan will join them for a visit here this weekend.

Too Late TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay

"When you read, with horror, the great account of the Circus fire that swept the main tent of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey at Hartford, Conn. with the attendant loss of life, it probably never occurred to you, that as citizens of Florida, you were directly involved in this tragedy."

But, as part owner of the "Greatest Show on Earth," you are, and the damage, now pending, which charge criminal negligence, make you a defendant in the tragedy. The state of Florida owns a 30 percent interest in the "Big Top."

In view of this fact, every Floridian should be deeply concerned and inform himself of all known facts relative to the occurrence. Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey is a Florida institution. The winter quarters and the Circus was established at Sarasota, years ago and the Ringling interest had much to do with the development of a thriving West Coast city.

Hearings and investigation that show such tragedies in the past, to place the blame, while serving to ease our public consciences cannot restore life to the unfortunate victims. It is like looking at a barn door after the horse has been stolen. However, if such occurrences bring safeguards, help us to avoid similar disasters in the future, they have not happened in vain. No Purple Hearts or Congressional medals were awarded victims of the Equus Theatre fire in Chicago and the Coconut Grove fire in Boston. But monuments stand to them in the form of asbestos fire curtains and fireproof decorations that have saved countless lives.

Before the fire, the tragic circus was making "Topsy Turvy" a show that it should have been. "Topsy Turvy" was the circus's slogan, and the circus was making "Topsy Turvy" a show that it should have been. "Topsy Turvy" was the circus's slogan, and the circus was making "Topsy Turvy" a show that it should have been.

Tests of the material made at Sarasota this week were impressive. Canvas treated with the material withstood the white heat of a blowtorch, the canvas growing red from the heat, failed to ignite. Circus officials said that before leaving Sarasota to resume their tour, all tents would be treated. This is small comfort to those who lost loved ones. A Hartford, but let us hope these men, women and children did not die in vain.

The circus is an American institution. It has served to bring joy and happiness to the nation's youth and the oldsters as well, even in time of war. It is a powerful force for morale building, and the entertainment it provides is immensely worthwhile.

Striking evidence of what the circus really means to a kiddie of this land was found in a letter received from an 11-year-old boy who, concerned over the loss and loving the circus so, sent a contribution of twenty-five cents to be applied in the building of a new and better circus to thrill and entertain himself and millions of other children in the years to come. It is the tradition of show business that the "show must go on." It will, with greater safeguards for the lives of those who patronize it. — Laugh, clown, cheer, for you have a role to play, even though the memories of a stark tragedy may dim the kindly eyes that are hidden in the opaque paint.
